

The New York Times

ART GUIDE

BILLY SULLIVAN, "My World," Fischbach, 24 West 57th Street, (212) 759-2345 (through March 3). In Mr. Sullivan's luminous painted world it seems as though people are always on summer vacation, enjoying sunlit oceanside spaces indoors and out. In his best pictures, which look like watercolors even when painted with oils, he combines seemingly effortless snapshot-based draftsmanship and pastel colors to portray people at play or in states of enviable ease. Yet one cannot help wondering what darkness is hidden by such a determinedly hedonistic vision (Johnson).